

LGBT 50

THERE WILL BE DANCING!

50 years ago, homosexuality
was decriminalised in England.

LGBT people and friends. Humans! Let's go outside and dance wearing Sappho's violets, Wilde's carnations or any flower you wish. Celebrate heroes past, freedoms gained and show solidarity with continuing struggles for LGBT equality at home and everywhere.

In one beautiful week, everyone is invited to parade at the first ever UK Pride in Hull, dance and eat cake at a very special Duckie Summer tea party, see The House of Kings and Queens at Humber Street Gallery (see overleaf) and be part of a new Yorkshire Dance production by Gary Clarke.

Remember, on a queer day you can see forever!
